TASK 1: STOCK ANALYSIS REPORT

Selected Stocks:

1. Adani Enterprises Ltd.
2. Bajaj Finance Ltd.
3. Axis Bank Ltd.

Prepared by: Joshna Darupally

Date: 29 September, 2026.

1. Introduction

- The objective of this report is to analyse three major Indian listed companies — Adani Enterprises Ltd., Bajaj Finance Ltd., and Axis Bank Ltd. These companies represent the infrastructure/conglomerate, financial services, and private banking sectors respectively.
- The analysis focuses on share-price trends, price-to-earnings (P/E) ratios, market capitalization, recent company developments, and selected financial performance indicators.
- Comparing companies from different sectors helps demonstrate how valuation and performance indicators can differ according to the nature of a company's business.

The analysis relies entirely on publicly available financial data to contrast their performance metrics.

2. Stock Comparison

The data collected as of present date i.e., 29 September, 2026.

3. Adani Enterprises Ltd.

- Company Overview

Adani Enterprises is the flagship company of the Adani Group, with businesses across infrastructure, airports, new energy, mining, copper and logistics.

- Price Trend

As of 29 September 2026, the stock was trading around ₹2,972.90, with a 52-week range of approximately ₹1,753–₹3,245. Its P/E ratio was around 44.51x, indicating a relatively high valuation compared with the other two companies. The company had a market capitalisation of approximately ₹3.83 lakh crore.

- Recent Market Considerations

In Q1 FY27, Adani Enterprises reported total income of ₹33,546 crore and EBITDA of ₹5,642 crore, representing year-on-year growth of 50% and 49%, respectively. Its recent business developments included expansion in solar-module manufacturing and the commencement of international operations at Navi Mumbai Airport.

4. Bajaj Finance Ltd.

- Company Overview

Bajaj Finance is one of India's major non-banking financial companies (NBFCs), providing consumer, commercial and other financial services.

- Price Trend

On 29 September 2026, its share price was around ₹973.80, with a 52-week range of approximately ₹787.90–₹1,176.40. Its P/E ratio was around 32.25x, while its market capitalisation was approximately ₹6.06 lakh crore.

- Recent Market Considerations

The company reported strong Q1 FY27 results, with consolidated net profit increasing by around 27% year-on-year to ₹5,986 crore and assets under management increasing to approximately ₹5.47 trillion.

5. Axis Bank Ltd.

- Company Overview

Axis Bank is a major Indian private-sector bank offering retail banking, corporate banking, MSME services and other financial products.

- Price Trend

On 29 September 2026, the stock was trading around ₹1,197–₹1,209, with a 52-week range of approximately ₹1,126–₹1,418. Its P/E ratio was around 14.6x, lower than the P/E ratios of Adani Enterprises and Bajaj Finance. The bank's market capitalisation was approximately ₹3.8 lakh crore.

- Recent Market Considerations

In Q1 FY27, Axis Bank reported standalone net profit of approximately ₹7,114 crore, representing around 22.5% year-on-year growth, while net interest income increased to approximately ₹14,646 crore.

6. Share Price Comparison

The three companies trade at substantially different nominal share prices. However, share price alone should not be used to compare company size or investment attractiveness because the number of outstanding shares differs between companies.

7. P/E Ratio Comparison

The P/E ratio indicates how much investors are paying for each rupee of earnings. Adani Enterprises and Bajaj Finance had higher reported P/E ratios than Axis Bank based on the market data used in this report. P/E should, however, be interpreted alongside earnings growth, sector characteristics, asset quality, and business prospects.

8. Key Findings

- Adani Enterprises had a share price of approximately ₹2,822.80 and a P/E of about 38.84x.
- Bajaj Finance had the largest market capitalisation among the three, at approximately ₹6.03 lakh crore.
- Axis Bank had the lowest P/E of the three based on the cited data, at approximately 14.6x.
- Bajaj Finance reported 27.60% year-on-year growth in Q1 FY27 net profit.
- All three stocks had experienced significant movement within their respective 52-week ranges.
- Broader market conditions, including crude oil prices, bond yields and foreign investor flows, were important influences on Indian equities during the period.

9. Conclusion

- The analysis of Adani Enterprises, Bajaj Finance and Axis Bank demonstrates the differences between infrastructure/diversified businesses, NBFCs and private-sector banks. Each company has different valuation characteristics, business drivers and market-performance patterns.
- Adani Enterprises had a relatively high P/E multiple and a wide 52-week trading range. Bajaj Finance combined a large market capitalisation with strong recent earnings growth, while Axis Bank represented a major private-sector banking business with a comparatively lower P/E multiple.

Overall, the comparison highlights the importance of examining share-price trends, valuation ratios, market capitalisation, financial performance and broader market conditions together when conducting stock analysis.
